

Future Career of Information Technology

Fatma Eroglu
IT Academy Con
fatma.eroglu@itaco.uk

Abstract

Because of the changing life standard and developing new technology, finding a job is a challenge for new generations. They must determine what careers are available, what their interests are, and what skills they have or need to develop. Numerous resources are available to help people get a sense of their interest and skills

Future career of the five competencies follows:

Managing resources: Money, space, materials, and staff.

Working with others: Teamwork skills are associated with communication skills.

Managing information: The ability to acquire and evaluate data and use technology to process information.

Understanding systems: The ability to understand social, organizational, and technological systems.

Utilizing technology: apply technology to specific tasks, and maintain and troubleshoot technologies.

At this presentation you will find career opportunities in the future IT sector. Especially it's mentioned about cyber security importance for all individual and institutional digital life

Key words: Future Career of Information Technology

